Peculiar Fight in Delaware.

Delaware has a peculiar fight on its hands. There are two Republican tickets and one Democratic ticket in the field for United States Senator, due to the feud in the Du Pont family. One of the Republican tickets has Col. Henry A. du Pont as its candidate for Senator and the other, which is supported by Alfred du Pont, has Dr. Hiram Burton, formerly a Congressman. As a result, it formerly a Congressman. As a result, it is admitted the Democrats may send their candidate, Josiah O. Wolcott, to Washington. The factional fight will not help the national Republican ticket any, but Republican leaders in Delaware claim the three electrons of the process. ciaim the three electoral votes never-theless. The State probably should be ciassed as doubtful, with Hughes bay-ing the better chance to win. Delaware also will elect a Governor, other State officers and one Congressman.
